

Organized Crime Is Topic of Lawyer In Rotary Address

C. Ray Hansen, who is spending his life fighting crime, addressed Rotary Club and guests at Governor Clinton Hotel.

Demonstrating conclusively that organized crime in America can never be eradicated through punishment, and stating even more convincingly that the scourge of racketeering and gangdom must be quelled at its beginning, C. Ray Hansen, noted lawyer, investigator and international speaker, delivered a stirring address before the members and guests of the Kingston Rotary Club in the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday noon, a speech alive with personal experiences in the realm of the racketeer, the gangster, and the kidnapper. So fluent was Mr. Hansen with the facts and figures of organized crime, so interesting was the delivery of his subject matter, that the small period of time allotted to the speaker was the only flaw in the thoroughly enjoyable program.

"When Al Capone was finally committed to prison on an income tax evasion charge," said Mr. Hansen in beginning his talk, "organized crime did not expire in Chicago, nor did the Capone gang break up. For Capone had left a trust fund of several million dollars to carry on his numerous activities and organized crime, allied closely with politics, flourishes in Chicago and other metropolitan centers the same as before."

This alliance of crime with politics is the foundation of big time racketeering, according to the speaker, and so strong a grasp has this alliance on elections, business, and government, that the chain is almost impossible to sever.

"Let us go to an election day in Chicago," continued Mr. Hansen, "in which the election of a governor, attorney general and other state luminaries was before the people. Sensing that something was wrong in various wards of the city in the method of election, a county judge had appointed two watchers to check on a certain ward, the 25th ward in the heart of the ghetto. These two watchers soon discovered that every type of election fraud was being committed in this ward. Efforts to protest were of no avail. At last, a Cadillac car pulled up before the polling place, and six well dressed, rough looking men got out and entered the place. The men voted fraudulently, and went outside, after a protest was made. They returned, pistols in hand, and surrounded the two watchers. One of them took the butt of his pistol and hit one of the watchers, a Chicago lawyer, on the jaw. Both men were beaten violently, and told to get in the car.

"The two men were driven through the streets, and at last were told to leave the car when it drew up before an alley. They were taken to an upstairs apartment, where they were greeted by more men, all armed. After another beating, until after election was over. About 9 o'clock in the evening the two men were taken from the apartment and driven to a railroad viaduct. Here they were dumped out of the car, and told that now they realized how a Chicago election was run. The mobsters' last warning to 'keep their mouths shut' or they would be bumped off.

The Chicago lawyer, one of the severely beaten men, was the speaker, C. Ray Hansen. Recovering from his injuries, Mr. Hansen started out to get to the bed rock of organized crime in this country, and during the past few years, as under cover man, investigator and companion to criminals, his knowledge of racketeering and other criminal sciences is second to none.

According to the speaker, one of the major reasons for the crime drive in the United States is due to the average citizen. Organized crime is in control of the ballot, so much so that elections today are not the will of the people. If the better class of citizen would vote so that he votes in every election, however trivial, it would help immeasurably to eradicate the gangster element in politics. With gangsters in control of elections, naturally the whole system of government must be corrupt, stated the speaker.

Corrupt police officials in almost every large city, patrons of gangsters who use their offices for graft and vice, Mr. Hansen listed as another dark foe of the honest citizen. The rat lawyer, hand in hand with the criminal, who places the chance to reap a financial harvest above the honor of his profession, is commonplace, and a tragic example of misplaced justice and corrupt courts. Example after example of political shysters, who bring murderers freedom through trickery, was described by the speaker, bringing out the strong relationship of gangsters with politicians.

Various other rackets such as the laundry racket and the barber's racket, wherein members of both trades are forced to pay tribute to an association in order to insure the safety of their businesses, all of these exposures and many more, authenticated by personal knowledge and experience, were described by the speaker in a seemingly endless stream.

Mr. Hansen also stated that a new kind of kidnapping would be in vogue within the next few months. In order to avoid Federal inquiry, kidnapping organizations have decided to cut down the ransom price between $1,000 and $5,000, believing

Final Vote in County Shows Republican Officers Did Well

Two Republican Candidates Rolled Up Majorities of More Than 7,000—Returns Except Denning, Came in Promptly.

With but one district missing, the first of Denning, a tabulation of the vote cast Tuesday indicates that the Republican county ticket was carried with exceptional majorities. In two instances the Republican candidate received more than 7,000 over his Democratic rival. In the case of District Attorney Cleon B. Murray and in the case of Leston DuBois, coroner, the majorities was well over 7,000.

Returns were received at the Board of Elections office on John street Wednesday from every district in the county except Denning, first district. In that instance a return was made but the person bringing in the returns failed to bring in the tally sheets or inspectors return sheets. Leaving home early in the morning difficulty was encountered with his car and in making a transfer to another machine the returns were overlooked and left at the local election office the papers were found missing. Had Denning had been received the returns would have been exceptionally prompt. One of the last districts to arrive was a city district. The town of Wawarsing, always late in filing returns, did not file the results in four districts until late in the afternoon.

A complete tabulation of the vote cast follows:

Member of Assembly, J. Edward Conway 21,400; Robert F. Browning 17,120. Assemblyman Conway, Republican, was re-elected with a majority of 4,270.

District Attorney, Cleon B. Murray 22,738; Arthur B. Ewig 15,791. Mr. Murray was re-elected by 7,007. County Clerk, James A. Simpson 21,561; William B. Martin 17,427. Mr. Simpson was re-elected by 4,134 votes.

Coroner, Leston DuBois 22,733; M. Galletta 15,958. DuBois majority, 7,775.

The vote on the Proposition was: For 12,550; Against 4,461.

Amendment No. 1. For 7,611. Against 5,315.

Amendment No. 2. For 7,007. Against 6,664.

Amendment No. 3. For 7,871. Against 5,122.

Amendment No. 4. For 7,498. Against 4,999.

Sudden Death of Major Ashton H. Hart

Was a Member of General Engineering Staff of American Army in World War—Elected Secretary of Kingston Chamber of Commerce in 1930.

A large circle of friends of Major Ashton H. Hart, prominent for a number of years past in Kingston business and social circles, were grieved to hear of his sudden death at the Kingston Hospital Wednesday evening, following a brief illness. Funeral services will be held Friday evening at 8 o'clock at A. Carr & Son's funeral parlors; interment will be on Saturday at Bridgeport, Conn.

Major Hart saw service during World War, being located at Tours, where he was a member of the general engineering staff of the American army. Following his return to the United States he was engaged for two years on an engineering project in Brazil. Since coming to Ulster county he had made his home with his family at High Falls. In 1930 he was elected secretary of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce and was very active in endeavors of the city as a whole, trying to induce new industries to locate in the city and advocating the building of better roads. About a year ago he resigned his position as active head of the Chamber of Commerce and took a position with the Rose & Gorman department store, where he managed the household and electrical appliances department.

Because of his interest in military affairs Major Hart was appointed in leader of the citizens' training camp movement in Ulster county. He was also intensely interested in the work of the Boy Scouts and took an active part in promoting scouting in the Ulster-Greene Council. For two years he served as president of the Council and was scout commissioner at the time of his death. A prominent Rotarian, Major Hart was a member and past president of the Kingston Rotary Club.

Survivors are his wife, Elsa Winzate Draudt Hart, a daughter, Suzanne, and a son, Winzate, also his father, Major Stephen F. Hart, who resides at Bay Shore, L. I.

Bucharest, Rumania, Nov. 9 (AP).—The government announced today that Rumania will pay its war debts to the United States December 15 on the same basis as its June 15 payment.

Kingston Girl Featured Artist At Victory Ball Friday Evening

HELENE MAE

One of the outstanding stars on the program for the American Legion Victory Ball at the new armory Friday night, November 10, is Miss Helene Mae of Kingston and New York, who will lend her rich soprano voice to make the evening of entertainment one of the most enjoyable sponsored by the Legion.

That Miss Mae is an accomplished artist is not a matter of press agent propaganda. She has appeared in Kingston before, being one of the entertainers that volunteered her services for the NRA rally in the old armory Tuesday evening, September 26. At this time she amazed all who heard her sing and was highly complimented by music lovers of this city, among those congratulating her being members of the Mendelssohn Club, musicians and instructors of voice culture.

The services of Miss Mae for the NRA entertainment were procured through the Rev. Francis P. Borowski, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church, this city, who is her uncle. City Judge Bernard A. Culliton, who as "general" of the NRA movement in Kingston introduced Miss Mae to the capacity audience at the Blue Eagle rally, said that it was a signal pleasure to present such a talented young lady. Since he heard that she is to sing for the Legion, of which he is a member, he expressed his opinion that she will be one of the most appreciated artists on the Victory Ball program.

"Miss Mae," said the Judge following the NRA show, "has a voice of wonderful quality and did splendidly in singing so well under the handicaps she had to overcome in the old armory. I am confident that those who hear her sing for the Legion will agree that she has a marvelous voice and will consider her appearance one of the outstanding treats of the evening."

John J. Bott Is City Treasurer

Mayor Eugene B. Carey today filed with City Clerk William C. DeWitt the appointment of John J. Bott of Andrew street as city treasurer to fill the unexpired term of James H. Betts, who recently resigned to accept appointment as district manager of the Home Loan Corporation with offices in Albany.

City Treasurer Bott has been serving as an assistant to Mr. Betts in the city treasurer's office for the past two years, and is thoroughly acquainted with his duties. He will serve as city treasurer until the first of the year when Mayor-elect Harry B. Walker will appoint a city treasurer.

German Crown Prince Repeal Vote Gives Blames Loss Of War President New Task On Marxian Theory In Liquor Dispensing

Marxist International Poisoning of People He Claims, Was Aimed to Annihilate Nation—Reviews "Fairful November Days" of Past 25 Years, Saying Another Lies Ahead.

Potsdam, Nov. 9 (AP)—Germany lost the war, Crown Prince Wilhelm asserted today, because she declined to curb drastically the Marxist international poisoning of the people.

Writing in the Lokal Anzeiger, the Crown Prince reviewed what he termed Germany's fateful "November days" of the last 25 years.

He described how in November 1918 the old Reich's political leaders yielded finally and broke down under the pressure of revolutionary elements which aimed to overthrow constitutional monarchy.

This, he said, "was accomplished in the thick of the hardest fight for existence against a world of enemies who were determined to annihilate the German nation."

"Because no effort was made to stay with an iron hand the process of Marxist international poisoning of the people, we lost the war."

"It was the last imperial chancellor for himself who laid the axe to the roots of the shaking fabric of state. Thus impotence and treachery were equally guilty in the criminal coup d'etat, of November 9, 1918," he said, continuing.

"On November 10, 1908, parliamentarism won its first victory which proved serious to the personality principle incarnated in the bearer of the crown."

"Exactly ten years later, the Kaiser Reich perished from the traitor's dagger assault of a senseless as well as an unmanly revolution."

"The attempt at an internal resurrection in November, 1923, as a pre-condition for forcing out liberation by fight, failed by treason."

The crown prince concluded with the reminder that another momentous election and plebiscite through which the government seeks support of its foreign policy next Sunday.

"It is the duty of the last German," he said, "to endorse the Plebiscite bill with a 'yes'."

Hailing the Nazi regime, he declared "the third Reich is standing firmly on the new foundations, anchored in the personality principle."

Both sides were bound for the moment to a silence broken only by two joint and rapidly formal communications. But some quarters regarded as significant the reply of Litvinoff's party when a Saturday social function was suggested. The visitors said it would depend on whether the Soviet foreign minister still is in Washington.

Also stressed in official circles was Hull's departure Saturday for the Pan American economic conference. Many believed Mr. Roosevelt wanted to reach his decision with his secretary of state in the capital.

For this reason, some thought the President's customary meeting with the press Friday afternoon might be the setting for a significant announcement on Russian relations.

Boy King Is Crowned While Afghan Nation Mourns Slain Ruler

Sorrowing Youth Succeeds Father, Victim of a Traitor—British Foreign Secretary in India Blames Blood Feud—Fear Further Khyber Pass Hostilities.

Bombay, India, Nov. 9 (AP)—A sorrowing youth of 21 accepted the Afghan throne today as the nation mourned the death of his father, King Nadir Shah Ghazi, who was slain by a traitor yesterday.

Though plunged into mourning, the nation "unanimously declared allegiance to a new monarch, Mohamed Zahir Shah," said a message to the Afghan consulate here.

The boy king was married two years ago to a cousin, daughter of Samsar Ahmad Shah Khan.

His father took the reins of government October 16, 1929. He succeeded Amanullah, whose attempts to "westernize" the country met with opposition from certain Afghan tribes.

A popular vote sent the late ruler to the throne from which he directed improvements in farming and business. He built roads and bridges and initiated construction of a trunkline railroad.

At New Delhi, India, a blood feud between the exiled former King Amanullah and his uncle, Mohammed Nadir, was blamed for the latter's assassination by Major W. K. Fraser Tytler, acting foreign secretary of the India Government.

"We had been fearing that this might happen for some time," he said. "Factions in Afghanistan are so bitter it is impossible to predict where the event may lead."

"It is significant that the assassination occurred while the Afghan Premier, who is the King's half-brother, Foreign Minister and Minister of Commerce," was touring the northern provinces."

It was feared that New Delhi that Afghan tribesmen might see a chance of looting Kabul, which mean the historic Khyber Pass may again be the scene of hostilities. The prospect of possible looting might cause a general rush from the British side to participate.

However, confidence was expressed in the discipline of the Afghan army, since the war minister is a brother of the slain King.

Rumors were circulating that Amanullah was intending to regain the throne and has a strong following in certain districts.

The alleged blood feud already had resulted in the assassination of another brother of the late ruler at Berlin in 1932 and a series of political executions in Afghanistan.

The British legation at Kabul telegraphed that the assassin was a student, believed to be one of the students repatriated from Germany—as was the assassin of Superintendent Stranger of the British legation in a garage at Kabul early in September.

FARMERS BURN BRIDGE BUT PIGS GO TO MARKET

Sloux City, Iowa, Nov. 9 (AP).—Further destruction of property was reported in the farm strike today.

Another railroad bridge—the third since the "war" for higher prices started—was destroyed by fire early today. The bridge, the property of the Chicago Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, was situated a mile south of Portsmouth.

Sheriff George E. Jensen of Shelby county said he found evidences of kerosene and other combustible materials on the burning structure, and blamed farm strikers.

The little pigs, as well as the big ones, continued to move to market, however, as farm strike pickets abandoned the highways.

that the party asked for payment will do so as long as the cost is low, rather than go through the perils and anguish of a long period of communications with the kidnappers.

In closing, Mr. Hansen said that the only way to fight organized crime was at its very birth. Potential criminals, the youth of the country, who are brought up in crime, must have their attention diverted to an honest livelihood. Young boys must be taught to obey the law, for reformatories are merely colleges where crime is learned, stated the speaker.

It was the belief of Mr. Hansen that punishment will never solve crime. It must start earlier than that. It must begin with the education of youth to obey and respect the laws of the land in which he lives.

Guests in attendance at the meeting included Mayor Eugene Carey, Judge Croton, Chief of Police Allan Wood, Judge Fowler, Charles Phinney, James Simpson, Peter Kerzman, N. New Galilee, Pa.—They know how to say "no" and mean it in New Galilee. The town voted against repeal, against sale of 3.2 beer and against Sunday sports.

The Worm Turns

Chicago—It seems the bridge worm has turned!

Only last spring Mrs. Rubie Bringman sued her husband, Conrad, for divorce alleging he abused her for her bridge blunders.

But she took lessons and so improved her game that her husband asked her to return and she did and this is what happened:

Bringman filed suit for divorce charging his wife punctuated her criticisms of his bridge errors with slaps and blows.

A judge gave him a decree.

Joy and Death

Goldboro, N. C.—Mrs. Mary Jones, 55, who had not seen her sister for 28 years, once said she would be ready to die if they could be united again. Two weeks ago the sister, Mrs. Cynthia Fields, came home. Mrs. Jones died—of heart complications, the doctor said.

The Mourner

Joliet, Ill.—State prison convicts were granted permission for a formal burial ceremony for a pigeon that drank oil instead of water and died, despite efforts of Convict Warren J. Lincoln, formerly of Aurora, to save it. Lincoln was sent up for life on a charge of slaying his wife and brother-in-law and burying their heads in concrete blocks.

No Howling, Please

Milwaukee, Wis.—Owners of dogs that howl and disturb neighbors will be subject to fines of from $5 to $25 under an ordinance approved by the common council judiciary committee. Humane Societies and dog pounds are exempted from prosecution.

Marooned

Byron, Calif.—Professional flagpole sitters have an earnest rival in a raccoon chased by dogs to the top of the city's 40-foot staff on Main street.

Arthur Howard, secretary of the Byron Irrigation district, attached salt pork and a can of water to the halyards and pulled them aloft. The raccoon enjoyed the meal. Betting odds favor him to elude the dogs.

Naming of Planets After

Gods Dates Back 400 B. C. The custom of naming the planets after the names of gods dates back to at least 400 years before Christ. The planet Mars, for instance, is named after the Roman god of war; Jupiter, after the Roman god of rain and sky; and Neptune, after the Roman god of the salt water. Saturn is named after the Roman god of agriculture.

The great festival of Saturn, a five-day holiday, took place in mid-December of each year, and was called Saturnalia. At this festival masters and slaves made merry on equal footing, and with unrestrained jollity and abandon. This word, Saturnalia, has come down to us through 2,000 years of time, and today is used to signify a feast of wild and uncontrolled revelry; in modern American slang, "whoopie."

Astronomically, Saturn is a majestic and fascinating denizen of the skies, without any of the fearful attributes with which astrology charges it.

Its distance from the sun varies between 861,000,000 and 911,000,000 miles. In point of distance from the sun, it is the sixth planet; the five planets nearer the sun being, in the order of their position: Mercury, Venus, the Earth, Mars and Jupiter.

The Martello Tower

The name Martello is supposed to be derived from that of a fort on Cape Mortella, Corsica, which was captured in 1794 by a British naval force after having put up a very gallant fight against a combined sea and land attack. This incident led to a firm belief in the strength of such towers, and resulted in their erection along the shores of England, especially in the South and East, says the Montreal Herald. Each one consists of a small circular tower of solid masonry, two stories high and containing vaulted rooms. In the lower part stores were kept; the upper portion was intended for troops, and the whole building was used as a means of defense. It was often surrounded by a ditch, and the only way of access was by a ladder which connected with a door about 20 feet above the ground. There was usually a small platform at the top with sufficient room for two or three guns to fire over the surrounding parapet. The chief defect the towers had was against vertical fire, so quite obviously they would be of little use today against aircraft.

Putting the Dry Law
In the Constitution

Prohibition repeat has written another chapter in the continued story of America's liquor battle—a story that was developing when the W. C. T. U. launched its attack and a militant Carry Nation brought her hatchet down on saloons. It marks a revival of the John Barleycorn to

(This is the first of a series of three stories giving the highlights in the fight that put prohibition in the constitution and the counter-attack that took it out.)

By NOEL THORNTON

New York (P).—"No! Enough!"—chorus the states: . . . Prohibition ends 13 years of stardom in a retreat from the stage. . .

It is the cue for Uncle Sam—who in his day has seen swinging doors give way to sliding panels to darkened speakeasy portals—to begin a new era in his regulation of spirituous liquors.

History, watching from the wings, turns its pages to the epilogue of the Eighteenth Amendment, another epoch in the age-old effort to solve the problem of temperance.

The Battle Begins Early

The story begins almost with the moment that the first colonist set foot on these shores, and trouble arose when Indians mixed with "firewater." But the national problem of prohibition bounded to the forefront first shortly before the Civil War. During that disagreement it was forgotten for a moment, but was revived again in 1869 with the organization of the Prohibition National Society in Chicago.

The first determined drive against liquor, possibly, in the final reckoning, will be credited to that unswerving, whom the fiery Billy Sunday had a mocking farewell and who was consigned—legally, at least—to oblivion by the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment and passage of the Volstead act over President Wilson's veto. Among those outstanding when the amendment became effective in ing, an-swinging crusader named Carry Nation, who spread terror in the hearts of saloon keepers in the early 90's. With her bands of militant housewives she swept from the Mississippi valley to the Bowery, bowling over the multi-colored de-canters and frosted mirrors of countless "dens of the devil," a pet name given by the Carry Nation storm troops to the saloons that flourished in that decade or so before the Spanish-American war.

Prayer Used in Attack.

They were hardy souls, these bands of women who, often, knelt in the snow outside of saloons and prayed for their end. The liquor interest laughed, but they failed to see that this evangelistic campaign was being molded slowly into a compact and organized movement. Congress felt its effects in 1913, but the prohibition exponents still were not strong enough. Nevertheless, they were not idle. Wayne B. Wheeler and his prohibition forces were gaining recruits.

"Good Bye, John Barleycorn"

Evangelists, speaking from their tabernacle pulpits, were gathering forces in every part of the nation. Notably so was the Rev. Billy Sunday, and it was a sweet triumph on that night in 1920 when, in Roanoke, Va., he cried out to John Barleycorn before his congregation, "Goodbye, John. You were God's worst enemy. You were hell's best friend. I hate you with a perfect hatred."

With the increasing rhythm of a

1920 were Wayne B. Wheeler, veteran of the dry cause, Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, often called the father of the Eighteenth Amendment, and Rep. Andrew J. Volstead, whose name has stood for 13 years as a symbol of prohibition.

symphony of hosannas the prohibition adherents approached their crescendo—the World War. An attempt was made to enact a prohibition measure as an act of national emergency, but President Wilson vetoed it, quoting as his reason that the liberty of the individual should not be violated.

Wilson Opposed Prohibition

Nevertheless, the act was passed as a rider on the food bill. It remained so until the Armistice, and then Wilson asked that it be repealed. But national feeling had passed beyond that. Prohibitionists were in power, and Congressman (later Senator) Morris Sheppard of Texas wrote the Eighteenth Amendment.

It was passed by both houses, and the question was put before the ser-eral states. The necessary 36 voted approval, so that it became a law at midnight of January 16, 1920.

Victory For Dry Law

Thus began national prohibition that was born in the revolution, found its Joan of Arc in Carry Nation in the 90's, progressed when Maine voted out liquor in 1846, won important recognition when Kansas wrote a prohibition clause into its constitution in 1880 and, in 1920, became the law of the nation.

It needed, and was given, only the police powers of the Volstead act, which provided severe penalties for those who did not obey.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds

Prehistoric coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creosolene, an established remedy which is pleasant to take. Creosolene is a new medical discovery with wonderful action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membrane and healthy germ growth. Of all known drugs, Creosolene is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for the commonest coughs and colds and other throat troubles. Creosolene contains the power to soothe and heal the inflamed membrane and stop the irritation and inflammation. While the remedy goes on to the source, it soothes the throat, and attacks the seat of the trouble. Creosolene is guaranteed satisfactory to the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, and is a remedy for building up the system after colds or flu. Your own druggist is authorized to refund your money on the spot if your cough or cold is not relieved by Creosolene. (Adv.)

Prehistoric Indians Practiced Cannibalism

Milwaukee.—Evidence that prehistoric Indians who lived at Aztalan, Wis., ate human flesh as a regular article of diet—when they could get it—is reported by Dr. S. A. Barrett, of the Milwaukee public museum. In a comprehensive report on the site which has interested archeologists for many years, Doctor Barrett declares that human bones found in refuse heaps at Aztalan are almost unbelieveably numerous. The bones are almost all broken open for marrow inside. "Revolutionary as this idea may seem," says the report, "we are forced to suggest that the evidence points to the probability that human flesh was here used as a regular article of diet whenever it was obtainable, and that the human flesh was handled in every way precisely as was that of the larger animals of the chase."

Excursion Boat Captain Has Saved 1,500 Lives

Boston.—Capt. Thomas Dudley Packard of the Boston-Plymouth excursion boat Myrtle, has saved more than 1,500 lives during the 40 years on the sea. In June, 1918, as commanding officer of the U. S. S. Machine, he rescued 290 passengers from a sinking ship off the Delaware capes. In 1894 he rescued 300 Boston factory girls from the City of Salem, grounded at the mouth of Salem harbor in a northeast storm.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

New York.—Not a "promising" but a "promising" play of the first second street business houses. The show runs from 11 a. m. to 11:30 p. m. Four shows a day, seven days a week—with an extra matinee performance on Saturdays. When not working before audiences, rehearsing for the new show. Report at the theater each morning not later than 10:30. Leave when the manager gives the order. Governed by a most stringent set of rules the infraction of any one of which means dismissal. Success? Well, it's just too bad, but the show must go on. A new girl steps into the line and the old is forgotten. If the recovers and wishes to return, she completes with hundreds of others because no place is kept open. There are 20 ready and waiting for any vacancy. And for all of that, $10 a week.

Most of the girls who work in the burlesque houses are from out of town—girls who have come here looking for careers. Hour after hour, they go through the same routine—go through it with a smile, no matter how they may feel. One of the houses last summer advertised with a house at Atlantic City—one week in New York, the other on the seashore. That was supposed to be vacation—the girls being able to go swimming and engage in other diversions in their spare time. If any. If they were late for a performance, they were fired, the same strict rules holding outside of New York.

Salaries of principals, who work fully as hard as the girls of the chorus, are in keeping with the salaries of those who are not featured. Comedians, who in the old days might draw $300 a week, now draw $50. "Strippers"—girls who undress for the edification of the morons in the audience—receive from $30 to $40 according to their experience. Burlesque houses pay from $27,000 to $30,000 a year rental. The companies are large. Expenses have to be kept down. Nevertheless, whenever there is a vacancy, mobs respond.

The rules make for morality. If a girl picks up a man within five blocks of the theater, she risks being dismissed. There are others along the same line. Burlesque managers, no matter the caliber of the performers, endeavor in every way to keep the breath of scandal from the performers. They don't want various organizations to get after them. A few months ago, vigorous attempts were made to oust the Forty-second street houses. There was an endeavor to hold up licenses. The burlesque houses won out. But they removed objectionable posters, toned down their performances somewhat and tightened up the rules.

It seems incredible, but I am told there are burlesque fans who go in when the doors open and stay through the last show. I wonder what kind of mentality gets a kick out of hearing lewd jokes over and over, and watching tired girls smile hour after hour? Two friends were discussing the late depression. "It was awful," said one. "I opened my mailbox and two cockroaches tried to drag me in."

Continental Currency of 1775-1779 Is of No Value

Continental currency is the term applied to the 40 million of bills of credit of paper money put out by authority of the continental congress from June 22, 1775, to November 29, 1779. In all the currency amounted to a face value of $243,600,000. The bills were promises to pay, based upon the size of congress to redeem them in Spanish milled dollars, or the value thereof in gold or silver. No date for redemption was given. The reason for their issuance was that the congress had no fiscal power, and no authority to levy taxes. There was, however, not enough faith in the prospects of the revolution being successful for the congress to be able to borrow much money. The bills were not secured by any real value, quickly depreciated, and at the beginning of 1779 they were able to pass for only one-eighth of their face. At the end of the year their value had fallen to 38 to 1. In 1780 the congress itself recognized its inability to maintain their value, and provided for their acceptance in place of silver at a ratio of 40 to 1. In 1781 the ratio fell to 100 to 1, and in 1780, by the terms of a funding act of that year, provision was made for redeeming them up to a certain date, at that ratio. Those bills not redeemed were thereafter without value, and no longer circulated. Large numbers of them are still preserved, but as they have no currency value there is only a collector's interest in them.

Cast-Iron Roads Praised

Roads made from cast-iron moldings, which have passed severe tests in England, are said to be anti-slip, ice-free and guaranteed to last twenty years without repair.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
WASHINGTON—Those charged with keeping an eye on Uncle Sam's gold are watching with more than a casual interest his mint receipts since inauguration of the President's new gold policy. The country's gold production is roughly around $50,000,000 a year. Last year 2,567,527 ounces of the metal valued at $50,521,500 were mined in the various domestic fields. The rate at which this gold finds its way into treasury vaults has fluctuated widely month by month this year. Starting off with receipts of 115,185 ounces in January, the peak of 197,694 ounces was reached in March. April and May receipts drifted back nearer the January figure. In June, however, a low of 44,445 ounces was reported. Both the July and the August receipts were below 100,000 ounces. In September they began to climb again. Receipts of 165,355 ounces were reported, a gain of 19,720 ounces over the August figure. Eater, New Gold The reason for this fluctuation from month to month is difficult to determine. Many factors enter into it. It is interesting to note, however, in connection with the increase of September, that it was on September 8 that the treasury fixed the price of gold at $20.62 an ounce. Before that date all gold was subject to the government decree that an ounce of gold was worth no more and no less than $20.61 regardless of fluctuating commodity costs. The higher price, in the opinion of some experts, caused the release of new gold. Now that the President has embarked on a policy which enables the Reconstruction Finance corporation to buy at an even higher price, the flow may be even greater. Already there are indications of increased production. Reports of mining revival come in from all of the gold producing sections of the country. The Picks Get Busy Officials of the bureau of mines in Washington anticipate an increase in production. Just how much of an increase there will be they will not predict. But they point to such statements as that made by Governor Rolph of California that there is sufficient placer mining ground in his state to furnish subsistence for 300,000 men. Also they point to the fact that heretofore mine production has been caused by the margin of profit possible at $20.61 an ounce. With the base advanced at the will of the President, and with the RFD in the market for newly-mined gold, the incentive for increased production will be large.

PRESBYTERIAN SOCIETY STUDIES ITS HISTORY.

The November meeting of the Roundout Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society was held on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Frederick Stephan. The devotional service was led by Mrs. C. M. Preston, who was president of the society more than 36 years ago. Reports of the Presbyterian meeting held at Freedom Plains in October were given, and the sunshine bags which the ladies have been filling with pennies for "sunny days" during the past year, were collected.

As a part of the centennial which the church is celebrating during the two weeks of November 1-14, the theme of the meeting was "The History of the Society." Many of the ladies wore costumes of the olden time, and a very entertaining program of "old time" songs was given. Miss Elizabeth Bishop sang two pleasing solos, "When the Swallows Homeward Fly" and "Listen to the Mocking Bird." A quartet consisting of Mrs. Louis Bevers, Mrs. M. R. Coutant, Mrs. Charles O'Connor and Mrs. Charles Terwilliger, sang very effectively "Long, Long Ago," "Updeed-a-da," "Robin Adair," and "Where Are You Going, Billy Boy?"

The society was organized in May, 1879, and a review of the first "minute book" of the society was given. It contained many very interesting records, one in particular being a description of the preparation, packing and sending of the first missionary box, with an itemized list of its contents.

Accounts of the first Presbyterian meeting and of the incorporation of the society will be given at the next meeting. A brief meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held at the close of the missionary program to discuss plans for the one hundredth birthday dinner of the church, to be given next Tuesday. The hostess served delicious refreshments and a delightful social half hour closed the meeting.

BITTERSWEET CARGO

By Thayer Waldo

STROLLING the deck at five o'clock the second day out, Peter Kerry saw her and stood still. Her hair was blue-black and her dress was magenta and her figure was divine.

These Kerry noticed in one glimpse. Almost, the further details were unimportant. Not that, of course; but so perfectly fitting the first impression as to delight without surprising him.

Pleasantly, he was aware of dark eyes, deep-set, of full and mobile lips of strong slender hands that lightly held a cocktail glass. And with deep interest, he saw that she stood alone at the bar.

Peter Kerry was an imaginative man.

At once the query presented itself: When a woman, especially a lovely woman, visits a ship's bar unescorted, what's the matter? Reflection offered two possibilities, and only two. Either she was traveling alone, or her companions had proved boring. And here, he told himself, it didn't really matter which was true. Her presence, whatever the circumstances, intrigued him; that was enough.

He went forward and in a moment was beside her.

Carelessly graceful, she leaned upon the polished counter, sipping a Martini.

The steward approached Kerry, and he said:

"A sidetrack, please."

She turned a little at the words, and looked with deliberate fullness at him. He became aware, then, of a charm and loveliness far more entrancing than the brilliant beauty which had caught his eye, and thrilled to it.

His cocktail came and the instant was gone.

Pleasantly, the steward asked:

"Enjoying the passage, sir?"

"Very much," said Peter Kerry; "in fact, I seem to like it better all the time."

A taste of the drink and he smiled approvingly, adding:

"And I must say you help make things pleasant, steward. A good mixer's always welcome."

The man beamed, modestly appreciative.

But it wasn't he who spoke. The voice was low and lilting. It said:

"So there. Next time, perhaps, you'll take a lady's word."

Without a pause, she turned again toward Kerry and explained:

"I tried to compliment him on my Martini, but he pretended it was only flattery."

Her ease of manner had dissolved at once all formal barriers between them. Kerry's admiration for her grew.

"I'm afraid," he answered, smiling, "that every true artist is suspicious of a charming woman's praise. Maybe it's the inferiority complex."

She laughed a little then. The sound had a fringe of warm, soft huskiness. "That," she said, "is almost like an epigram, or something. I thought people only wisecracked nowadays."

She continued smiling at him; a frank smile, yet possessed, he found, of a subtly disturbing quality.

"So out of step," he went on, "that I took a swim this afternoon instead of attending the tea dance. You see, nobody told me it wasn't the thing to do. I certainly had the pool to myself."

The smile became a quick little grimace as she answered:

"That was sensible. Those affairs are really awful. I went but I couldn't stand it long. Tomorrow I'll follow your example."

Peter Kerry raised his glass.

"Splendid!" he exclaimed. "I drink to that prospect. After all, it's much more pleasant to defy the established order when you have company."

She joined him, laughingly, and lifted the goblet in her left hand. Suddenly Kerry caught the gleam of tiny diamonds from the platinum band that circled her third finger. And in the next instant, he saw that some one else had come to the bar. A man, tall and blond and sleepily handsome, stood beside the woman in the magenta dress. Glancing up, she said:

"Oh—hello, Jerry dear."

"Hello, Pat," said the man. "If you're still sober, let's take a turn around. Want to?"

She nodded and took his arm.

As they turned away, she smiled a goodbye to Peter Kerry without speaking. He bowed an acknowledgment, then stood unmoving till the two had vanished, down the long deck.

The steward, wiping the bar top, was close beside him when Kerry asked:

"Do you—happen to know that couple, steward?"

The man paused.

"Why, yes, sir," he answered, "in a way. I do. They're stopped by here quite a few times since we sailed. Let's the name, sir, I believe."

Returning to the polishing, he went on:

"Such nice people, sir—both of them. And so devoted, too. It's a real pleasure to see a happy pair like that."

A moment of silence, then:

"Oh—yes; that's right, steward."

"Added, and moved abruptly off."

Back in his cabin, surprised and more than a little disappointed, Peter

Kerry got managed to view the thing with a certain philosophic calm. The woman, beautiful and apparently unattached, had appealed. But the laugh, it appeared, was rather on him. Here, at least, his notions of why ladies drink alone on shipboard were most thoroughly squelched; for this one owned a husband and a husband of whom she was obviously more than fond.

The instant, then, must simply be surpassed.

It was after three the next day when Kerry came to the pool. Again, tea and tango and drawn most of the passengers. A single figure floated at the tank's far end. Kerry threw aside his robe and plunged in.

The cool water was sharp, invigorating, and he struck out strongly against it. A dozen strokes, and he noticed the figure ahead had become erect. In another moment, the features were discernible. Peter Kerry stopped swimming and stood up, twenty feet beyond the full lips and dark eyes of Patricia Lott were smiling at him.

"Hello, there!" she called. "Isn't this grand? And to think I missed it yesterday!"

She had come closer.

Kerry looked at her and beamed, somewhat foolishly.

"It is," he said; "but I—I didn't think you'd be here."

She laughed, and suddenly dove ahead.

"Come on," she cried, "I'll race you to the end!"

Turning, he plunged after her.

The swim and the talk that followed, lolling in deck chairs by the pool's edge, was a torturing delight.

For whole minutes, he forgot the blond, tall man with drowsy good looks, and revelled in the joy her company gave him.

Then, seeing the ring, reality would return, harshly dispelling the moment's stolen pleasure.

That evening, Peter Kerry had dinner in his stateroom. It was, he felt, a very necessary measure. Self-deceit had never been his habit, and this time the facts made themselves painfully acute. He was, to be exact, in love and he knew it. There could be then, but one course for him; seclusion, as much as possible, till the trip's end.

To this he pledged himself over the solitary dinner, and the pledge was kept. Only twice in the next two days did he see her, and on both occasions avoided a meeting. Once, the last day out, he ran into her husband, alone on the boat deck. The man spoke a greeting, but glanced at him rather strangely. Kerry thought:

That night he went sleepless.

Through the interminable hours, blank cold, misery crept upon him, and what he had called sanity and honor, came to seem a contemptible mess of idiocy, of cowardice.

When the ship docked at Cherbourg, just past seven, Peter Kerry was a wearily bitter man.

Packed, he waited in his cabin twenty minutes after the landing tumult had died away. Then, taking his own luggage, he went ashore. The pier was nearly deserted. A lone taxi remained. Its driver rushed forward, volubly ingratiating, and seized the bags.

As he reached the cab door, Kerry suddenly felt a hand on his arm. He turned to find Gerald Lott standing by him.

"Look here, old man," said Lott; "this may seem cheeky, when we hardly know each other, and all that; but I just wanted—to—that is—look us up in Paris, won't you? We'll be at the Saint Faubourg."

Kerry stared without comprehension into the handsome face, that was smilingly embarrassed.

"I know Pat'd be awfully glad if you did," the man went on. "You see, she's come over for a divorce, and I—well, I want her to start getting some real fun out of life. To me, Pat's more than a swell sister—she's the grandest girl I've ever known."

Edicts Against Corset

Merely "Empty Sound"

The corset, which a short time ago threatened to resume its old whalebone rigidity, must rank among the articles of dress which, however often denounced, seem invulnerable against attack. Louis XIV of France, though he suppressed the high headresses of court ladies by a word, could not win obedience to a decree against the corset, and when Charles X condemned it to extinction, it was noted that the ladies merely clasped it about them more tightly than ever. A more subtle move was that of the Emperor Joseph II of Austria, who sought to discredit the corset by ordering that women of bad character or convicted of serious crimes should be made to wear them. But even that did not discourage the others!

Temple Emanuel Is Scene of Activity

Services will be held at Temple Emanuel on Friday evening, November 10, at 7:45. Rabbi Bloom will preach on the theme "Grant Us Peace," an armistice sermon. Everyone is welcome.

On Saturday morning, November 11, at 10:15 the high school class will meet in Temple Emanuel.

On Sunday afternoon, November 12, Rabbi Bloom will act as chairman of the Hudson Valley Jewish Education Conference to be held at the Jewish Community Center at 2:30 o'clock. There will be an afternoon and evening session at which topics of interest to all concerned with Jewish education will be discussed. Representatives from all over the Hudson Valley will participate. Dr. Samson Benderly of New York City and Rabbi Bamberger of Albany will be among the speakers. Everyone interested in Jewish education is urged to attend.

The class in Jewish History will be held on Thursday evening in the house of one of the members of the group. The place of the next meeting will be announced at the end of each gathering. Rabbi Bloom will be at home from 3 to 4 o'clock p. m. on Wednesday, November 15, for consultation.

AND

Buy New Tires NOW!

YOU don't need to be an engineer to get the point of the chart shown here.

Let your eye follow the increasing height of the black bars shown above—they represent the increase of non-skid mileage that you get as temperatures go down.

The point of this chart is simply this—it's good sense and good business to buy new Goodyears now.

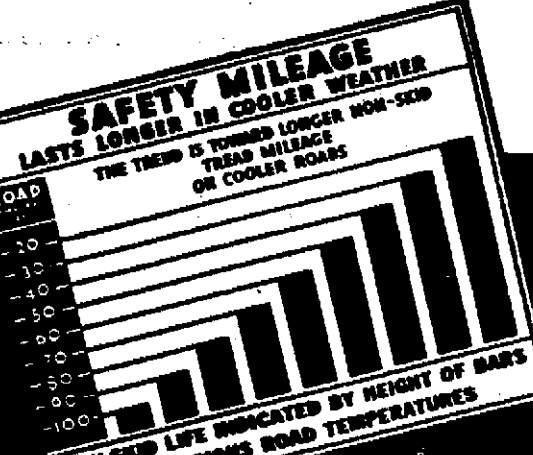

Because you'll have more slippery driving in the next five months than in all the rest of the year —because tires which get their "breaking in" during wet, cold weather average 30% more total mileage than tires started off new in hot weather months

—because you can buy the best tires Goodyear ever built at prices almost exactly where they were a year ago

—because every tire you buy now helps to keep men at work and bring back good times it will pay you to look over your tires today and protect yourself from tire troubles and dangerous skidding by putting on new Goodyears now.

Alumni Plan Rally Next Month at K.H.S.

Get-together December 1 With In-clude Entertainment—To Present Play in January—Employment Bureau in Office.

At the regular monthly meeting of K. H. S. Alumni Association last evening, plans were made through which all graduates of the school will be drawn to a rally on Friday, December 1, at the high school. Entertainment by Kingston's most talented performers will feature an evening of fun, and dancing will wind up the program.

The alumni rally will be the first function of the year that has been conducted by the association. Ever since the reorganization in early September the opening get-together has been continuously and unavoidably delayed. According to a member of the executive committee, it is hoped that through this affair the alumni will be definitely on its way to a busy and useful year.

Walter Donnan, who is in charge of the rally, is busy at work securing an attractive list of entertainers. Last night arrangements were completed by which Zaven E. Melik, formerly of K. H. S., will come from New York to present a short program of songs and sketches. Mr. Melik's ability with the crayon and brushes is surpassed only by his fame as a singer. His younger brother, Sam, already one of the country's leading artists, will also be on the program.

Work will begin immediately upon the production of an alumni play for some time in January. Miss Anne Herzog will coach and direct this project and she is already busily engaged upon the selection of a play. The cast will be chosen by her from the large body of alumni. It is hoped that anyone who is interested in competing for a part will get in touch with Miss Herzog.

Under the leadership of Janes Fowler, the alumni are attempting to set up an employment bureau of their own.

When Osage Indians are guests of the Grayhose, Okla., chamber of commerce each year, they cook the food to suit their own tastes.

MOUNT VERNON HUNTER KILLED IN SHOOTING ERROR.
Tupper Lake, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP).—Shot through the hip by a hunting companion, who mistook him for a deer, Clifford Braucard, 23, of Mount Vernon, died yesterday in a camp 13 miles south of here.

One of the party fired a single shot which struck Braucard in the hip. Two of the party immediately set out for a doctor, ten miles away, but Braucard died of an internal hemorrhage before his arrival.

NEW PALTZ

New Palitz, Nov. 9.—The local fire department held their regular meeting on Monday night, November 6, in the fire company's rooms on Main street. The president, Jay Zimmerman, presided over the business which was brief. Refreshments were then served of punch, coffee, sandwiches, pickles, olives and cigars. This was followed by a "smoker" at which about sixty were present, with the Rev. Gerret J. Willschleger serving as toastmaster of the evening. Those called upon for speeches and who responded were Vanderlyn T. Pine, Jay Zimmerman, Peter H. Harp, Joseph Connolly and Jay LeFevre. The principal speaker of the evening came last, Edgar V. Beebe, of the Normal School faculty. He in his usual manner with short sketches brought out some "Hot Air of the Town". The group departed about eleven o'clock, having enjoyed a very happy evening.

In the Normal chapel on Tuesday morning, November 7, the program was in charge of Professor Edgar V. Beebe. The assembly sang "Come Ye Thankful People Come". Mr. Beebe read Proverbs 3. All repeated the Lord's Prayer. Announcements were made by Dr. Lawrence H. Vandenberg, Edgar V. Beebe, Kay Humphrey and the Intermediate Club. Professor A. Bruce Bennett read groups of poetry.

Miss Ethel Addis of Poughkeepsie spent the week-end with Mrs. Ida Stephens on Church street.

Abram Brundage of Plattkill avenue has had his residence painted.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Smith and Miss Jane McHugh of South Chestnut street entertained guests from Marlborough on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Poncher entertained relatives from Connecticut on Sunday.

Mrs. Keziah Gerow celebrated her 87th birthday on Saturday, November 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb Kniffen and Mrs. Mary E. Kniffen called on Mrs. Phoebe Bennett at Tillson on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay LeFevre were among a number of guests entertained at the home of Mrs. George Pratt in Highland on Friday evening.

The Rev. and Mrs. Robert Guice of Modena called on friends in town during the week.

Phillip Pallen called on friends out of town on Wednesday, November 1. Miss Grace MacArthur was absent from school on Monday, November 6, so the regular procedure of Freshman Forum was dispensed with. Instead the entire freshman class witnessed the play, "Babbie's Boy", given by a group from one of Miss Rebecca McKenna's modern drama classes.

On November 4, a forest fire broke out five miles south of Lake Minne-waska and gave fire wardens a four-hour battle. 27 men were called to help check the flames, and due to their heroic work not much damage was done.

A number of the local American Legion members visited New York November 2, where they attended the rally in the Pennsylvania Hotel.

Eltine Harp and family entertained Dr. A. G. Cummings of Poughkeepsie on Monday.

Mrs. J. F. Ross of North Oakwood Terrace is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Brittnier at Wappingers Falls.

Mrs. Daniel Shaw entertained Miss Marguerite Smith and Mrs. Oscar Smith of Modena at her home on North Oakwood Terrace one day the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hasbrouck and son, Richard, of Grove street, and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Deyo of Springtown were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Delancey Hasbrouck at Ohioville.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young entertained Mr. and Mrs. George Young of New York city over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Minard entertained Mr. and Mrs. James J. DuBois of New Rochelle on Sunday.

Miss Jeanette Stauntner spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stauntner, in Walkkill.

Miss Margaret Hasbrouck is visiting her brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hasbrouck, at Highland.

Miss Virginia Walker, who attends the Normal School, spends each week-end with her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Harvey Walker, at Dover Plains, Dutchess county.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hagan of Ohioville have closed their house for the winter. They will spend the winter in Yonkers.

Margaret Donnelly, who attends the Normal School, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Donnelly, at Wappingers Falls.

Vera McCarthy spent the week-end in Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Emma Miller and son, Wezer Miller, of Brooklyny, were in town last week.

Mrs. Lena Huling while visiting in Newburgh called on Mrs. Jared Smith who was formerly of New Palitz.

Stauntner Smith of Chatham will spend the winter at Los Gatos, Cal., with his son. Mr. Smith is well known by many people in New Palitz and vicinity.

F. L. Holdridge and family have moved to Poughkeepsie. Mr. Holdridge is district manager for an insurance company. He will still cover the same territory for a time.

Mrs. F. Zimmerman of North Chestnut street is quite ill. The many friends of Judson Schoonmaker will be glad to know he is improving under the care of Dr. Virgil DeWitt and his nurse, Miss Marjorie Weismiller.

Wisconsin's 77 breweries sold 454,971 barrels of beer during the first four months of operation after the return of beer.

NEWS

is the Dynamo of Business

Seldom before has there been so much important news!

Rarely have people waited so eagerly for their copies of daily newspapers.

These are the days when "new things happen"; when the whole world seems bent upon making itself over.

Try to imagine the past year without newspapers as a reliable source of information. You will picture a country blind and paralyzed, a prey to rumor and fear and almost certain chaos.

Following the news has become a habit in our lives; almost like breathing or eating. Our conversation, our opinions, our actions are based on what we read in newspapers.

Advertising in the newspapers is, for this reason, more than advertising. It is part of the force that is generated by the great dynamo of news — the force by which people act and think.

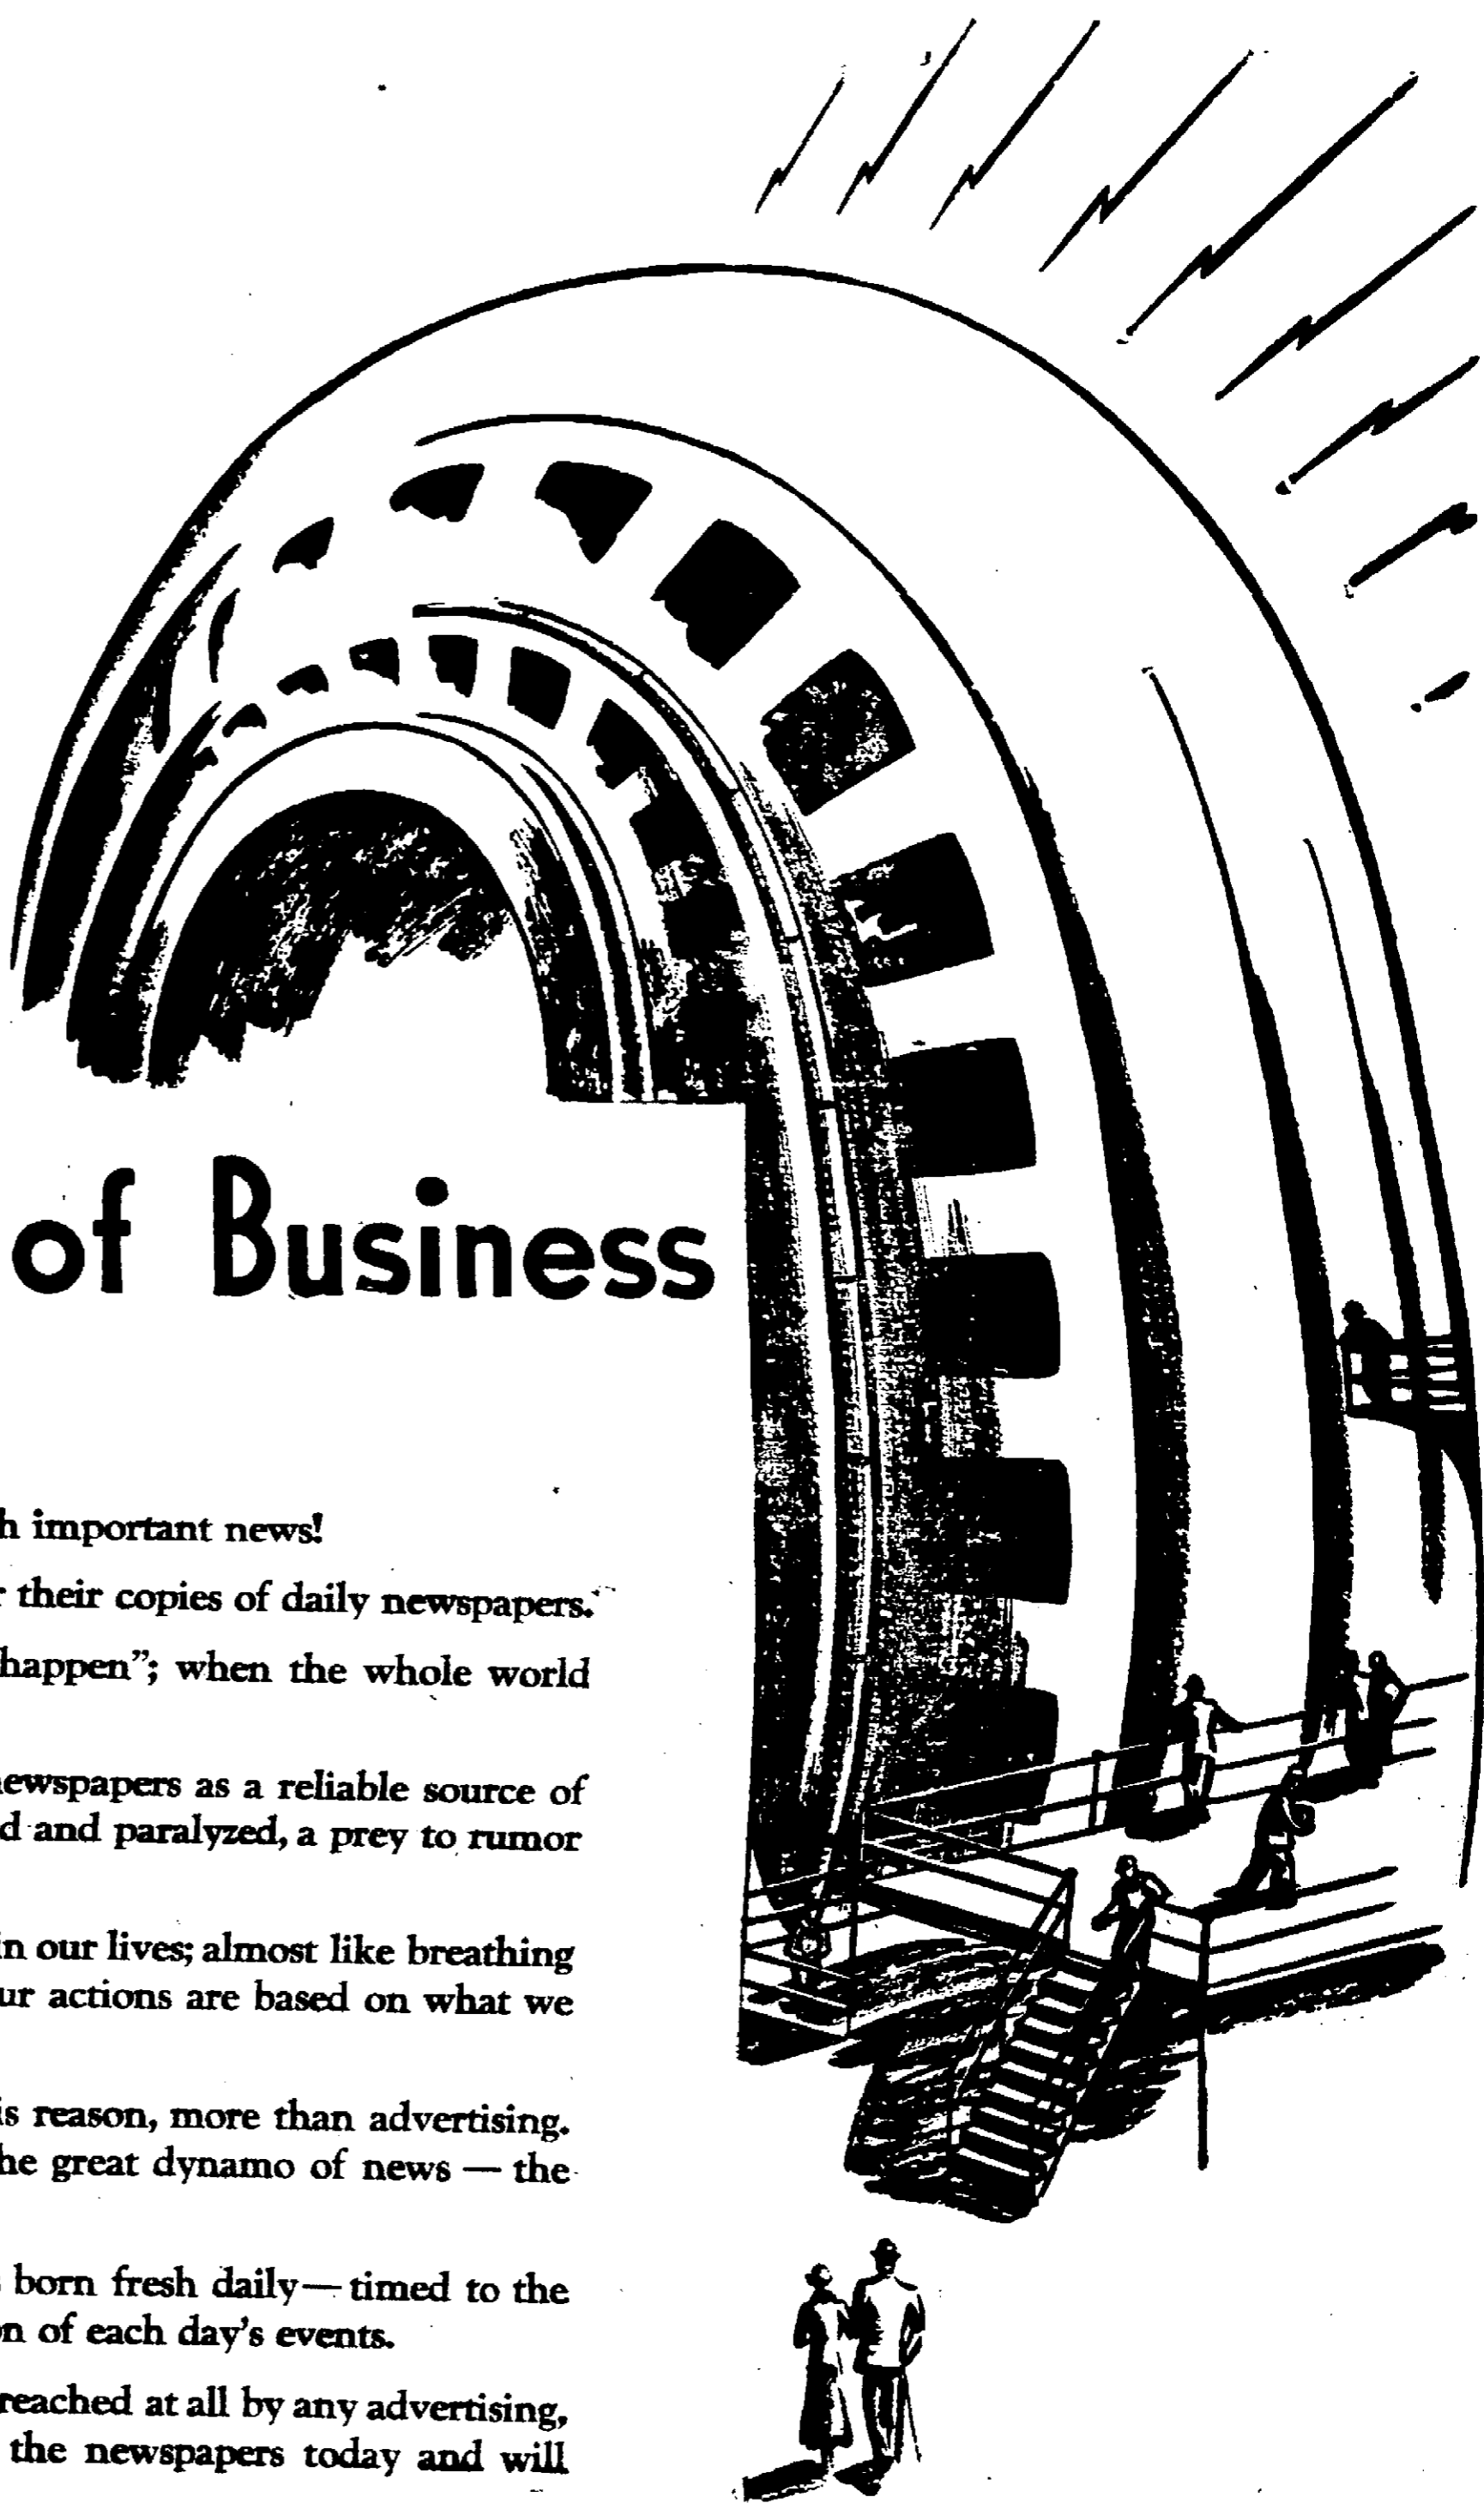

Newspaper advertising, like the news, is born fresh daily — timed to the minute — sparkling with the energy and action of each day's events.

It reaches virtually everyone who can be reached at all by any advertising, because whatever else people do, they read the newspapers today and will read them again tomorrow.

When you think of this, it is little wonder that advertisers in increasing numbers are harnessing their sales message to this dynamo called the news.

They are directing its mighty force at markets which are most promising. They are timing it to day-to-day sales opportunities.

If you want to see your sales curve rise with the return of business, put your advertising message in the pages of this newspaper. Put this great dynamo of news to work for you.

Newspaper advertising gets to everybody every day -- and gets there FIRST.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Wall Street's bulls led in today's trading, pushing the market up about 1/2 point. The Dow Jones industrial average closed at 224.12, up from 223.64 yesterday. Mrs. Howard Lewis Wins State Prize

The office of the Ulster County Home Bureau received word this morning of very gratifying character to the Ulster County Home Bureau whose representatives are now attending the meetings of the New York State Federated Home Bureaus in Syracuse, being held at the Hotel Onondaga.

Mrs. Howard Lewis of the Flatbush unit of the Ulster County Home Bureau, who is representing the southern district of the Federated Home Bureaus, received the first prize of a medal in the state public speaking contest. Today at noon, Mrs. Lewis broadcast from Syracuse, her subject being "What the Home Bureau Means to Me."

CLINTON AVENUE CHORUS DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED.

The members of the choir of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church and their escorts were delightfully entertained last evening at Epworth Hall. About 60 were present. An excellent chicken dinner was served, after which an evening of fellowship, song and fun was enjoyed. The choir members wish to thank the official board of the church, the Rev. Mr. Rignall, Vernon S. Miller, choir director, Mrs. B. B. Ellison, organist, Albert H. Shultz, fund maker, the committee of ladies who prepared the dinner and the charming young ladies who served for giving them such an enjoyable evening.

KINGSTON RETAIL MILK PRICE TO BE BOOSTED

The state milk control board has ordered an increase of one cent per quart in the retail price of milk in Kingston. The increase becomes effective Monday. The increase was decided on the basis of a study of costs and profits of distributors made recently by Prof. Leland Spencer, agricultural expert. Other cities including Newburgh and Hudson are affected by the order.

Miss Walton Going Abroad

Shokan, Nov. 9.—Miss Kate Walton, for many years a teacher in the Kingston High School, is spending the week at the Winchell farmhouse. Miss Walton plans to sail for London on the steamship "American Farmer" on Friday, November 24. While in Shokan she met several of "her boys" who formerly attended the high school from this section. Miss Walton taught her first school in the Coons district, about a mile north of the old village of Shokan.

Rebels Command Fort Entire Nation Offers In Grim Determination Old Vintages and New To Restore Céspedes

Loyalists Surround Alcazar Castle Without Firing a Shot but Prepared for Attack—President Gains Withholds Court Martial Threat for Rebels.

Havana, Nov. 9 (AP).—The thick and ancient walls of Alcazar Castle, towering commandingly over Havana since 1787, held the hopes of Cuba's desperate rebels today as—with 52 known dead and 182 wounded—they battled to restore Carlos Manuel de Céspedes to the presidency.

The revolutionists concentrated their strength there early today while the government of President Grau San Martín held out the threat of prompt court martial and perhaps execution for all those participating in the revolt.

At the same time, a state of war proclaimed by the President existed island-wide and newspapers were published under the shadow of a presidential order that any editor printing "slandering news" be court-martialed.

Slipping quietly away from San Ambrosio fortress and the Dragones barracks while Cuban Fulgencio's loyal troops prepared to attack those strongholds at dawn, more than 2,000 members of the ABC Secret Society, soldiers and policemen entered Alcazar fortress reinforcing the rebel garrison there.

There was no immediate explanation of why the loyalists failed to fire a single shot, although artillery and machine-guns had been placed around Dragones and San Ambrosio and guards posted. Loyal officers inside the captured barracks refused any information, but others at Alcazar circuitously informed the Associated Press that all the rebels' arms ammunition had been brought there.

Amendment 2 Seems Lost as Others Carry

Issue Giving Preference to Civil Service to Veterans Not Citizens At Enrollment Not Favored—Unemployment Relief Bond Issue Of $500,000,000 Wins Easily.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 9 (AP).—The proposed amendment to the state constitution, extending veterans' civil service preference to World War veterans who were not citizens at the time they enlisted, today appeared to have been defeated in Tuesday's election.

Although the count was far from complete in upstate counties, a heavy adverse vote in New York city brought the total for the state to 517,176 for the amendment and 625,012 against it. The proposal was known as amendment two. The $500,000,000 unemployment relief bond issue was safely approved by an incomplete vote of 1,155,581 for and 156,048 against. This will guarantee funds to help the state's unemployed through the winter. It brings the total made available to New York jobless for relief purposes since 1931 up to $172,000,000. The other three proposed amendments also appeared to have been approved.

HIGHLAND YOUTH HELD FOR JURY ON ABDUCTION CHARGE

Benjamin Castellano, 19, of Highland, was held to await the action of the next grand jury on a charge of abduction lodged against him by the father of a local girl, after a hearing this morning before Judge Culliton in police court. Attorney Milton O. Auchincloss represented Castellano, while Attorney Roger H. Loughran appeared for the district attorney's office.

Shokan Election Results

Shokan, Nov. 9.—Majorities in the first election district of Olive for candidates on the town ticket are as follows: Supervisor, Herman Weldner (R); town clerk, Reginald E. Davis (R); collector, John Davis (D); superintendent of highways, Claude Bell (D); assessor, Martin J. Every (R); assessor, Homer Markle, Sr. (R); Justice of the Peace, Charles Gille (R). John Darling and Thomas Braithwaite, both Republicans, received 103 and 193 votes respectively, as against a total of 232 for their Democratic opponents. Of the above named candidates, Messrs. Markle, Gille and Braithwaite are residents of Shokan. The number of registered voters who did not come to the polls was large, as shown by an enrollment of 374 and a total vote for supervisor of 237.

Market for Old Paper

Many of our old newspapers and magazines are shipped to India where they are used by the Hindus to wrap and pack various articles, including foodstuffs.

"Don't look the stable after the horse is gone," says practical Polly. "Feed it out as a groom!"

Famous Centers of Other Days Ready To Open. Wineries, White Florida Plant "Wines," Virginia, Applesack—Michigan Wineries Licensed.

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP).—In almost forgotten wine cellars of states east of the Mississippi the hundreds of thousands of gallons of old vintages ready for drinking tables.

Like the Vintages of California, who at the end of the present season will have stored up nearly 50,000,000 gallons of wine, those of the east and middle west have been quick to sense the change in the popular will.

Champaign for which sections of New York state became famous are ready to do again. A survey of grape producing areas centering around Poughkeepsie, Hammondsport and Naples showed 10,000 cases of domestic champagne in five of four-year-old operating wineries, and more than 100,000 gallons of bulk wine on hand.

Southwestern Michigan, producer in the old days of American varieties of Burgundy, port and claret, has witnessed increasing activity. The state liquor control commission has licensed five wineries, one of which reported a capacity of 100,000 gallons. Michigan vineyards are considered capable of producing 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 gallons a year. In Missouri, the vine has been taking new root.

Weapons Once Method to Scare Away Hailstorms

Arrows, spears and javelins were the weapons by which primitive humanity sought to scare away hailstorms. In the Middle Ages various noise-making processes were employed for the same purpose. The modern expedient, which has cost European vine growers and farmers tens of millions of dollars, is to fire cannon or rockets at the clouds. Thousands of mortars of a special pattern were in use for this purpose in the early years of the present century, but an explosive rocket is now the favorite European device for fighting the hail storm. The rocket bursts high in the air, but far below the level where hail is formed. Its alleged effects are perfectly illusory. The process seems to succeed often enough to perpetuate popular faith in it because a fall of hail is normally of brief duration.

So it is with the old custom of firing at waterspouts: It is fairly certain that the broadside of a battleship at close range would not dispel one of these violent vortices. Their natural term of existence, however, is limited to about fifteen minutes, on an average, and is often much briefer; so it is not strange that the mariner should attribute the disappearance of one to a cannon shot.

Years ago the hail rod vied in popularity with the hail cannon as a means of safeguarding European vineyards from hailstorms. It was merely an overgrown lightning rod, set up on steeples, tall steel towers and the like. Many of them were erected in France under government auspices. They probably afforded some protection from lightning. Popular faith in them was shaken by several cases in which vineyards close to these rods were ravaged by hail and the rods themselves were violently pelted. They are now completely discredited. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The wooden Indian for years has been a sentinel in front of cigar stores. The reason is the redskin was the first grower of tobacco in this country. In fact, the wooden Indian became a symbol for tobacco just about the time the white men of Europe learned the art of smoking from the Indians and took it to Europe.

The old wooden Indians have become rare, one selling here recently for $50.00, says a writer in the Kansas City Star. This one had stood in front of a tobacco shop 44 years. It is one of two left in Kansas City. He is known as Chief Big Smoke.

Wooden Indians are not indigenous to American soil as is tobacco. As early as the reign of James I the wooden Indian was a familiar sight in Merrie England. There is evidence the old wooden chiefs were no novelty in 1617, the year Pocahontas died. Undoubtedly the sculptors of the "tobacco warriors" probably never saw an Indian, because records reveal that the poor old chiefs sometimes weren't very noble in appearance.

Europe apparently believed an Indian was a creature who wore nothing except stepping made of tobacco leaves. That's the way some of the early members of the "wooden tribe" appeared. The race is now vanishing. There are collectors of wooden Indians who have established museums as happy hunting grounds for many kinds of the noble "warriors." For many years a bronze cigar store Indian stood in Boston and the story goes that Henry Wadsworth Longfellow used to stop to admire it.

Community Concert Association Lists Its Concert Dates

The Community Concert Association announces its concert dates and artists for this season. These concerts all being given in the High School Auditorium.

Wednesday evening, December 6, Richard Crooks, distinguished tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Co., will be heard in recital.

Wednesday evening, January 2, 1934, Silvia Lant, violinist, will be the artist. Miss Lant is widely known on the concert stage and has appeared as soloist with the Philadelphia, Detroit and Chicago Symphony orchestras.

Tuesday evening, February 15, Eunice Norton, concert pianist, will be the attraction. Miss Norton is considered one of the foremost women pianists of the present time. After an outstanding success with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra with Stokowski last season, she was engaged by the New York Philharmonic Symphony and repeated that success with Toscanini, after which she has been engaged and played with every great symphony orchestra in the country. This course will be recognized as one of great merit and will undoubtedly prove one of the most attractive that has been given by the Community Concert Association.

Membership cards for which subscriptions were received during the campaign in the early fall are being mailed to subscribers this week. These cards entitle the holder to admission to all the concerts in this city and to any concerts in other cities in which community concerts are given.

Famous Last Words As Prohibition Dies

Comments as Different and Colorful as Personalities from Whom They Issue—Volstead Retires Into a Shell of Silence.

(By The Associated Press)

Some of the latest comments on repeal:

Alfred E. Smith: "Of course I am delighted with, but not surprised at, the final repeal of the 18th Amendment."

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South: "The country has the right to expect that, as the President appealed for beer and repeal, he will now broadcast a strong appeal to the states against the return of the saloon in any form."

Andrew J. Volstead, co-author of the Volstead Act: "I have nothing to say."

Newton D. Baker: "It gives us fresh opportunity to renew the struggle for temperance, which is better than prohibition after all."

William D. Upshaw, 1932 presidential candidate of the prohibition party: "The assassination of the 18th amendment when this constitutional youth was only a lad of 13 is the greatest moral tragedy this country has ever known."

United States District Attorney Gregory H. Frederick at Detroit: The revenue act "Has more teeth than the Volstead Act ever had."

The Charlotte (N. C.) News as to why the state went dry: "North Carolina wants to be dry internally."

It is to be regretted that we found it necessary to vote a hearty no on the question of repealing the 18th amendment.

The Columbia (S. C.) State on why that commonwealth voted dry: "The opponents of repeal did some active work while the advocates took repeal for granted."

Missouri farmers grew approximately 1,000,000 acres of Korean lespedeza in 1933.

Society Notes

Arboretum Club. This week the Arboretum Club met with Miss Van Hoeverberg. Miss Reeves had the paper for the day on "The Culmination of the Elizabethan Drama on Shakespeare," an admirable paper. Scenes were given from "The Taming of the Shrew," directed by Miss Noone, the readings being given by Mrs. King, Miss Smith, Mrs. Fischer, Miss Nelson and Miss Hovrad. The next club meeting will be November 22 at the home of Mrs. Stelle.

About the Folks

Miss Caldwell and Miss O'Brien of Los Angeles, Calif., who have been the guests of Dr. Christopher Keefe, have returned to their home in California.

DEFECTIVE CHIMNEY SET FIRE TO RESIDENCE

About 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the fire department was called to the residence of Abraham Tucker at 311 Broadway where a defective chimney had set fire to the partition wall between the living room and the kitchen. The fire did considerable damage before it was brought under control.

Clam Chowder Sale Friday

The ladies of the Reformed Church of the Comforter will hold a clam chowder sale in the church hall on Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Orders for chowder may be telephoned to Mrs. Leroy Deitz, 237-J, or Mrs. Van Wert, 1655-R.

High schools of Alaska will be presented with Alaskan flags to fly below the stars and stripes.

Local Death Record

Herman Erbe died Wednesday night at the Kingston Hospital. Funeral will be held from his late home, 15 St. James street, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in Wiltwyck cemetery. Mrs. Erbe, his wife, died on September 24.

New Paltz, Nov. 9.—Mrs. Washington of Lloyd died in the Kingston Hospital Tuesday morning after a serious operation on Monday afternoon. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Methodist Church, New Paltz. Mrs. Washington had not lived in our community long, but had endeared herself to a host of friends, always willing to do her part in anything pertaining to a worthy cause. She was a member of the New Paltz Methodist Church choir and attended the Sunday school and church services as regularly as possible. Mrs. Washington was also active in other organizations and will be greatly missed in the community. Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

EXTENSION COURSE IN MODERN HISTORY SATURDAY

The extension course in modern history, scheduled to start at Ellenville November 4, was not begun at that time as the required number of teachers was not present and the instructor did not organize the class. J. Hartley Tanner, district superintendent of schools, states that Dr. Van den Berg of New Paltz has informed him that the class will start Saturday, November 11 and urges teachers to take advantage of the opportunity that will be offered at that time.

DIED.

Poems of Beauty Selected by BYRNE BROS.

By THOS. CAMPION

The man of life upright,
Whose gentleness is free
From all dishonest deeds
Or thought of vanity;

The man whose silent days
In harmless joys are spent,
Whom hopes cannot delude,
Nor sorrow discontent;

Good thoughts his only friends
His wealth a well-spent age,
His earth his job's "in
And quiet pilgrimage.

The selection of one of our monuments insures a memorial of distinction and permanency. An unlimited choice of attractive designs available.

Seven Colleges Will Close Grid Seasons Saturday, Nov. 11

By CHARLES LANG
Associated Press Staff Writer
Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 2 (AP).—Seven of the thirteen upstate college eleven engaging in football contests on Armistice Day, bring to a close their regular seasons. They are: Buffalo, Clarkson, Cortland, Hobart, Ithaca, Oswego, and St. Lawrence. Buffalo, however, may play a post-season game.

Syracuse, minus its injured full-back, Barney Nevins, and taking along the knowledge that it must play better football than it offered last week against Penn State if it means to win, goes to Providence to face a favored Brown. Syracuse has been playing alternately powerful and ragged football this season. Coach Vic Hanson spent much time this week in emphasizing defense.

Colgate, scored on by N. Y. U., led by Lafayette, and defeated by Tulane, expects a light game with Ohio Northern at Hamilton. Coach Andy Kerr gave his regulars a rest most of the week, to fit them for the classic with Syracuse November 15, while he spent most of his time developing the reserves.

Cornell, losing each attempt to win a major victory this season, rests before heavy preparations for Dartmouth.

Clarkson and St. Lawrence at Canton, Union and Rochester at Schenectady, and Hobart and Buffalo at Geneva, play traditional games. The contest at Canton is the 15th in a series begun in 1903. That at Schenectady is the 20th game in a 44 year old series. The Canton meeting will witness a battle for supremacy of the air, both teams being strong in that element. The game will decide the championship in the Little Ten Conference—formerly the Little Ten.

Rain and snow in the first half of the week retarded Union's preparation. Radical changes in the Union attack will include shifting of Capt. Austin Fox from center to backfield in an effort to bolster the secondary defense. Rochester hopes to have fleet-footed Al Spaulding back in the lineup. The Yellow-Jackets prepared a defense against Union's passes.

Buffalo enters as a slight favorite against Hobart because of its improvement in the last two games. Hobart went through passing drills daily.

Hamilton College, brushing up for a trip to Haverford, was drilled in forward pass defense. The Continentals' first string forces got less work in this week's practice sessions than did the reserves.

Other contests Saturday: Hartwick and Ithaca at Oneonta; Cortland Teachers and Oswego Teachers at Oswego.

Canisius, smarting under the unexpected first defeat of the season at the hands of St. Bonaventure, was drilled hard and long this week on blocking and tackling in preparation for an objective game with Niagara on Sunday at Buffalo. Seven Canisius regulars, injured last week, are doubtful starters. Niagara received light workouts with dummy scrimmages and devoted much attention to bottling up aerials. Every score against Niagara this season has been made on a pass.

PUNTS and PASSES

(By The Associated Press)

Evansville, Ind.—If any of Northwestern's regulars have been wondering who was that freshman who passed them dizzy in yesterday's practice, they can set their minds at rest. It wasn't a freshman but Pug Renner, All-American half back in 1931 and one of the greatest passers Northwestern ever has produced. He lined up with the yearlings to give the varsity a good workout.

Cambridge, Mass.—It was a small select gallery that watched Harvard's practice yesterday. The two watchers were W. Cameron Forbes, former Governor General of the Philippines, who was the Crimson's coach in 1904, and the famous "Dud" Dean, father of the present Harvard captain.

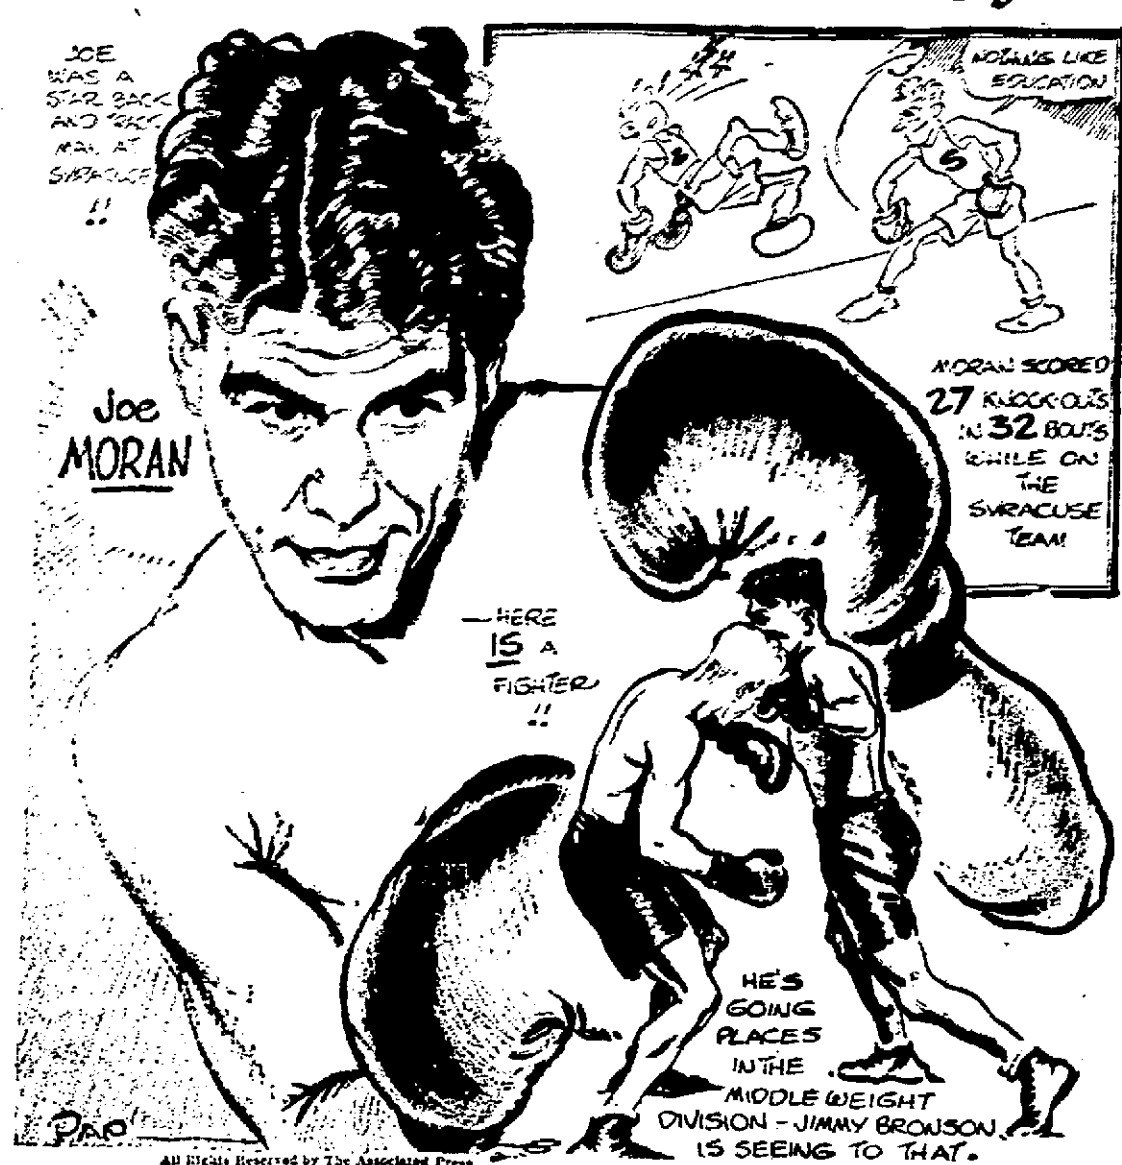

Athens, Ga.—Only three or four members of the Georgia team which will play Yale Saturday were on hand when the Southern Bulldogs beat the Elis in 1931 but at least one of them should have vivid memories of that day. He is Homer Key, midget back who scored two touchdowns against Yale and hopes to repeat the stunt.

Lafayette, Ind.—Purdue has suffered a real setback in its preparations for the Notre Dame game. Duane Furriss, the Boilermaker's best ball carrier, underwent an operation for an infection of his left leg yesterday and will not be able to play. He is expected to get back into action the following week.

Princeton, N. J.—The Princeton team, already ranked as one of the best in the east, may be even better in its remaining games. Dan Himmelman, veteran center who broke a bone in his foot just before the opening game, finally has returned to the squad. He may play against Dartmouth Saturday.

Blacksburg, Va.—Charles "Heinie" Groth, who was recently listed as one of the hardest backs to stop on the whole Virginia Tech squad, finally has been stopped by an injury. Groth was laid up for several weeks by a damaged knee and when it was healed he found he couldn't get into condition to finish his final season. He turned in his uniform yesterday and it is learned that he was disappointed that he thought of resigning from college.

Meet Mr. Moran

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

The officiating system for college football needs a fire drill or else it should be wired for sound, for the benefit of experts and spectators alike. If the confusing episodes of October on many eastern gridirons are to be regarded as samples of what is going on.

Despite the fact relatively few changes were made in the football code for 1933, the principle one being the elementary side-line rule, there have been more disputes and mystifying decisions on the field than at any time in recent years.

Probably few of the complexities developing during play are due to lapses on the part of officials, yet the absence of proper explanation or any explanation at all has tended to develop criticism of the officiating.

Football is difficult enough to dissect and analyze, from the layman's or the press-box viewpoint, without a lot of unexplained and baffling rulings being tossed into the picture. The spectator seems entitled to some relief from his current bewilderment inasmuch as he is paying certain fixed sums, plus tax, for the attempt to find out what is going on.

Sign Language

The officials have a complicated wig-wag system or sign language by which they are supposed to inform all onlookers the cause of their ruling or the nature of the offense penalized.

These are explained and illustrated in the football guide and in most big-game programs. Unfortunately they are subject to individual interpretation as to what is meant. Or else they are ignored altogether by the referee, who is too busy making up his own mind what to do and perhaps can't remember the signal code, anyway.

In some of the more advanced areas of public information, scoreboards reveal the causes of penalties or official conclusions which need explanation or clarification. It would seem, also, that the loud-speaker system could be utilized to keep the

Burgevin And Tiano May Not Play Against Port

Saturday, when Kingston High tackles Port Jervis at the tri-state city, two of her most illustrious gridiron sons may be warming the bench. One of these is Ed Burgevin, leading ball carrier of the Maroon and White, who may be out of Saturday's contest because of sickness, the other player is Marco Tiano, Kingston's running and kicking back, who has developed a lame shoulder which was received in the Middle contest last Saturday.

Ed Burgevin, Kingston's leading runner and scorer, and considered the best field runner in Dusodom, has been sick for the past two days and even if this great back of the Maroon gridriders should attend practice today and tomorrow, he would probably not be able to play more than a half which would decrease the Klasmen's favoritism over the Red and Black. Marco Tiano, Kingston's runner, punter and probably the hardest hitting tackler of the Maroon and White, has a lame shoulder that may also put him on the bench for the greatest part of the game. These two men with Jim Cullum compose Kingston's big three which has been so formidable this season. In case folks from the necessity of so much guessing.

Budding Legal Light

One of the explanations given me for the weird decision of the referee in disallowing a field goal by Army against Illinois at Cleveland was that the oratory of the acting captain of the Illinois, a lad named Frink, was so convincing that the official was overcome by it and cancelled the three points which had been posted to West Point's credit on the score-board.

As most everyone knows, the football rules exempt the player holding the ball for a place-kick from being affected by the dead-ball rule. The Army back holding the ball for Travis Brown to kick was on both knees as he took the pass from center. The Illinois leader claimed technical violation of the rules, insisting the ball be declared dead.

these men are not able to play Coach Kias will probably use Van Valkenburg in place of Burgevin and substitute Pirie for Tiano.

Since the Kias regime in Kingston, the Maroon and White has played six games with the Port Jervis gridriders in which Kingston has collected 50 points to the 49 points rolled up by the tri-state city team. Before Kias came to Kingston the Kingston-Port Jervis games were generally one-sided, favoring Port Jervis. The results of games in previous years are as follows:

	K.H.S.	P.J.H.S.
1927	14	6
1928	2	12
1929	6	0
1930	19	6
1931	0	12
1932	9	13

Won three, lost 3, tied none. Saturday, Kingston hopes to better the one point lead over the Black and Red and add this game to one of their conquests for the DUSO crown which Kingston has never won, as yet, in football. However, Captain Debrosky hopes to lead his team to the top of the DUSO circuit, having conquered the Middletown varsity which was considered the strongest team in the DUSO circuit.

"Give Vent To Emotions Just Like School Boys"

Those who think of professional football as a cold-blooded business proposition don't know their Chicago Bears. They do everything except root for the good guys after a victory. Above are three of the team's brightest stars. They say the perennial "Red" Grange is even a greater player now than when his name was a household word.

NO ACCIDENT!

It is no accident that more men are smoking Bayuk "Phillies" than any other cigar in America.

It is no accident that experienced smokers—able to pay double or triple the price—prefer Bayuk "Phillies" to any other cigar.

No finer Domestic and Havana tobaccos are grown than used in Bayuk "Phillies". No finer Sumatra is imported than used for the Bayuk "Phillies" wrapper.

In January—the price of Bayuk "Phillies" was reduced from 10c to 5c—and Bayuk promptly remitted $140,000 to dealers on the cigars they had purchased to retail for 10c.

Since that time, this same identical Bayuk "Phillies"—in quality, in size, in shape—has been available to smokers for 5c.

The result is history. The amazing value of this fine cigar—at 5c—soon caused it to become—as it is today—the fastest-selling and largest-selling cigar on the market.

Bayuk pledges that the quality of Bayuk "Phillies" WILL NOT BE CHANGED.

Bayuk's Guarantee

In 1929—a peak sales year—the Bayuk Philadelphia Perfecto (famously known as "Philadelphia Hand-made") was the largest-selling 10-cent brand in America.

Bayuk guarantees that this cigar today—at 5 cents—contains the same fine imported Sumatra wrapper—the same fine ripe Havana and Domestic long-filler. It's the same identical cigar.

CHIMNEY FIRE SCARES

OLIVE BRIDGE RESIDENTS

West Shokan, Nov. 8.—Mr. and Mrs. James Bush, well known Olive Bridge residents, experienced a bad scare Sunday morning. A cracked tile smoke pipe laid between the ceiling partition from the dining room stove to the new outside stone chimney was traced in the source of the trouble.

At the breakfast table Mr. Bush detected the odor of smoke and noticed that blue wisps were coming from the woodwork partition. Mr. Bush, rushing out of doors, found that smoke was pouring from the eaves and roof. Securing a ladder and an axe he proceeded to break a hole through the roof near the chimney. Meanwhile Mrs. Bush and his brother John formed a bucket brigade, passing water up to the roof with which Mr. Bush proceeded to douse the blaze, which had rained considerably the roadway inside. Fortunately the fire was extinguished before considerable damage resulted.

The loss was promptly adjusted through the agency of Floyd Terwilliger of Ashokan. Repairs are being made by North Brothers, the well known Shokan carpenters.

Democrats Planning To Place the Worthy Members in Office

William C. DeWitt Slated to Be Clerk of Board of Supervisors—Another Kingston Democrat May Be Assigned to the Deputy Clerk's Office.

With the Democratic party apparently in control of the board of supervisors for the first time in over a score of years, already plans are being made by leading Democrats to place worthy members of the party in office. The question of who will be clerk of the board of supervisors is reported to have been solved. A prominent member of the party states that William C. DeWitt, now city clerk, is scheduled for the job. Mr. DeWitt was the unsuccessful candidate in the first ward for a seat in the county legislative board. Other names are also being mentioned for the position.

In addition to clerkships there are assistants to be appointed and another Kingston Democrat who is being mentioned as aspirant for the clerkship may be assigned to the deputy clerk's berth.

Dr. Poling To Deliver Address Here Friday

Youth Council will celebrate its second birthday Friday evening. At 6:30 a chicken dinner will be served in the First Presbyterian Church. Kimbol Pirie will be toastmaster and he will be assisted by other members of the Council. Dr. Gates, adviser of the Council, will talk.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, D. D., LL. D., radio preacher of New York city, will deliver an address at 8:15 o'clock in the First Dutch Church. He will be introduced by the Rev. Lucas Boeve, pastor of the church. The Rev. F. B. Seeler, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church, will pronounce the benediction. Young people representing various groups in the city will take the other parts of the worship service, which will be presented before the main address. The service was prepared by Henry S. Van Der Zee, chairman of religion in the Council.

The meeting at the First Dutch Church is open to all who desire to attend. Registrations may be made tonight or Friday at either the Y. M. C. A. or the Y. W. C. A. offices. No registrations will be made at the door of the church. Those desiring to register may call Kimbol Pirie, telephone 1896-W or Buft Van Deusen, telephone 562-M or the Y. W. C. OFFICERS ELECTED BY Y. M. C. A. LEADER'S CLUB

The Y. M. C. A. Leader's Club met Wednesday for the first time as a club under the direction of Clarence S. Schoonmaker, general secretary of the "Y", and elected their officers for the coming year. The young men elected were as follows: William Nelson, president; Willis Locke, vice president, and John Young, secretary-treasurer.

Members of the "Y" may make application for membership to this group through any of its members. It will be necessary, however, for each new applicant to be voted in by the other boys in the club, and then take a test as they have done.

This group meets each Wednesday afternoon for an intensive course of work and study.

WHY Size of Your Hat Doesn't Affect Your Brain

There's a grain of truth in the adage: "Little head, little wit; big head, not a bit."

At least, that is what Professor G. Jackson Herrick of the University of Chicago asserted before the anthropology division of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. While admitting that measurements of the brain have offered but meager material as to its mental capacity, he referred to the old adage as having just a bit of truth in it, adding:

"And those of us who wear small hats get such comfort as we can out of it."

He said that while a small, though significant correlation between brain size and general competence has been established statistically and within certain limitations, application to individual cases did not always bear out the findings in large groups.

Professor Herrick said that it is generally agreed that there are between 10,000,000,000 and 14,000,000,000 nerve cells in the human brain. The job of the anthropologist, psychologist, physiologist and biologist is to discover the relation of each cell to the others. The cells are arranged in patterns, about 100 of which already have been mapped.

Until this is done, he said, man cannot hope to understand the meaning of weights, measurements, indices and formulae of brain research.—Chicago American.

Why People of District of Columbia Do Not Vote

Article 1, Section 2, of the Constitution provides that congress shall have power "to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever," in a district which may become "the seat of government of the United States." Since congress has the exclusive right to legislate on the local affairs of Washington, and since the Constitution does not confer the privilege of voting—even for President—upon the citizens of the United States—this privilege is conferred by states—the residents of the District of Columbia are completely disenfranchised. Many maintain a legal residence in the state of their origin, and vote from there, or by mail. There is nothing to prevent a resident of Washington from holding a federal office.

Why Gas Meter Is in Yard

Gas meters often are placed conspicuously in the front yards of farm homes. It is because some farm homes are close to the road and some far back. The farmer has to maintain his own service pipes and the company charges him at the point the gas leaves its line and enters the farmer's line. The farmer usually gets his gas from a high pressure main line that chances to pass along the highway in front of his home, so a regulator to reduce the pressure is used with the meter.

Why Lindsey Was Barred

Judge Lindsey was barred from the Colorado courts on account of an accusation that he had been guilty of unprofessional, unethical conduct, embracing acceptance of fees while he was judge. The case cited was acceptance of fees in the case of the W. E. D. Stokes estate. Judge Lindsey's defense was that his connection with the Stokes case was "disinterested from the work of the juvenile court in which he was judge, and that he acted merely as arbitrator and mediator."

Why Cheshire Cheese Is Famous

It was a popular coffee house in the days of Joshua Reynolds, Samuel Johnson, Oliver Goldsmith and the great Londoners of that period. It was one of Johnson's favorite gathering places. In fact his memory is closely associated with this coffee house. One of Johnson's pipes is still exhibited to tourists who find their way down the narrow alley-like approach to the Cheshire Cheese.

Why Sailors Don't Wear Belts

Bluejackets in the United States navy wear neither suspenders nor belts with the blue trousers, says a bulletin issued by the Navy department. The trousers are made waist-tight fit. In the days of sailing ships when it was necessary to go aloft to furl or unfurl sail, it was not desired to have any loops or articles of clothing which might be caught on the marine spikes or pin rails.

Why Guide Rails Are Used

There is a little "island" formed by extra rails over a trestle or bridge on the inside of the other rails. The arrangement forms a protection against a street car or train going off the bridge. The inner rail will tend to straighten and guide the course of a street car off the rails until safely across the bridge.

Why Gold Seems Cold

The bureau of mines says that gold is not cold. It is merely a good conductor of heat. Therefore, when the temperature is lower than the temperature of your body, it appears cold, and when the temperature is higher, then its body appears hot.

Why Poe Is an "Annie Oakley"

Theater janes always have two holes punched through them and the nickname for janes (Annie Oakley) is an allusion to the accuracy of Annie Oakley's aim, for she often made a double perforation of a target with two shots.

All Roads Lead to Home—

but the Shortest Road is the Telephone

It doesn't matter how far away from home you may be, there is always the joy of reunion awaiting you, when you lift the receiver and are back there again in no time.

Such a trip back home is full of cheer—it gives comfort and peace of mind—it brightens the day for all.

Call up your family frequently when you are away. And, of course, you probably have lots of friends and relatives who would like to hear your voice again. Why not call them? You can say much in a few minutes. They will remember it for days—and so will you.

It doesn't cost much, particularly with reduced evening and night rates—down about 15% at 7 p.m. and 40% at 8:30 p.m.
